Kassel. 24th December 1824

I have told Mademoiselle von Callenberg the contents of your letter of the 22nd December, and she is rejoiced that you accepted her offer, and prays me to tell you the printing may commence soon, i. e. several weeks. She would like better, if you could yourself correct the proofs, since a journey that she would trouble her from doing it regularly, ~~whether~~ whether I told you ~~in~~ positively (however I think) contains two volumes, (the second to be here at this instant, but not yet arrived), each volume per twenty two to twenty four leaves the little descriptions made in the bound together. You had your possession. Madm. von herself make an announcement in which, she will say something of the worth of that man and that if you an octavo sheet, send it. I since I would not willingly by assisting in a translation in which, I take
