[Schmelzing, G. E.: 13
(Paris)]

Supposing that neither the dazzling lustre of glory You live in nor time and vicissitudes of life can have ~~brought~~ You to cancell'd out of Your <sup>good natured</sup> mind Your sincerest friends abroad I venture to remind me to Your remembrance by heartfelt congratulations and wishes. 'Tis no courtiers bow paid to beauty and talent, in highest favour. No. 'Tis friendship gladden'd by ~~the~~ ~~happi-~~ ~~ness of~~ ~~greatest~~ ~~man~~. Your happiness and the greatest man's living ~~particular~~ ~~applause~~ flattering applause; and 'tis friendship ~~participating~~ sharing Your satisfaction in every respect, and emulating in benevolence to You even with the laurel'd Hero at Sansouy and the man You like most.
